

Supervisor candidates hit issues

PLEASANTON — Incumbent Supervisor John D. Murphy and challenger Valerie Raymond brought their differences to a head last night as they exchanged policies, theories and barbs before a television audience at the Pleasanton Hotel in an hour-long debate.

Sponsored by Citizens Against Redevelopment (CARD), the candidates tackled questions from the press, audience and each other under hot studio lights. The debate will be broadcast Wednesday, Oct. 27, at 8 p.m. on Cable Channel 10.

Valerie Raymond won the coin toss and fielded the first question on the concept of a valley-wide city with consolidated services. "I have reservations about a one-valley city," Raymond said, stating that a joint powers agreement for coordinating police and fire services might be beneficial.

Raymond said she was not sure what the merging into one city would accomplish, except to separate the people further from their city councils.

John Murphy said the idea was "something that should be looked into," but it would have to be initiated within the valley itself. He said there would be advantages in receiving federal funds and it would remove the board of supervisors, with only one elected official, as governing agency.

On the question of stockpiling funds to finance future projects, Murphy said the county has had no bonded indebtedness whatever. He prefers the pay-as-you-go system, which removes the problem of asking areas outside the valley to vote on valley bond measures that probably wouldn't pass.

Raymond disagreed, saying that the Alameda County coliseum complex, a $1.5 million employee retirement fund, and construction of three county buildings were bonded debts the county had assumed.

On the question of protecting agricultural land in the valley, Murphy said the farmers are being forced out of their ranches and that tax reform is badly needed. Murphy said he has made attempts to request the governor to call a special session of the legislature to consider tax reform.

Raymond said that if Murphy were more sincere, he would have worked more closely with the assessor's office and Assemblyman Floyd Mori in solving the tax reform problem.

In opening statements to begin the second half-hour of the debate, both candidates became more combative, with Raymond leading off.

"We do see this district differently — Supervisor Murphy sees it as it was 16 years ago; I see it as it is now," she said. The board should have night meetings so working people could attend, occasionally move the meetings out of Oakland, and that supervisors should take more control to reduce county bureaucracy.

Raymond said the next supervisor should go out and talk to the people, converse with ranchers on the tax problem, and assume greater control in the social service area.

Murphy said he has been successful in every endeavor he has undertaken, and listed the district's toll free telephone service, the Alameda Creek federally financed project, and his vote to approve the coliseum complex as examples. "Without me, there wouldn't be a coliseum complex."

Ford signs Tao House legislation

Legislation creating a national historic site and dramatic art center at Tao House near Danville has been signed into law by President Ford, Sen. Alan Cranston, (D-Cal.) announced today.

Cranston, author of the Eugene O'Neill bill in the senate, said the action was "a victory for the people of the Bay Area and for the arts in America."

The addition of Tao House brings to 53 the number of national historic sites in the United States, he said.

It will be maintained by the National Park Service for the public, and developed with private support as a national center for studying and performing American drama, according to Cranston.

"Of all historic areas managed by the federal government, only one other — Carl Sandburg's home in North Carolina — is preserved for the public solely because of its place in the development of American literature, poetry or drama, the senator said.

Tao House, which faces Mt. Diablo across the San Ramon Valley, was O'Neill's home from 1938 to 1944. The playwright wrote his last, and some of his finest dramas there, including, "Long Day's Journey Into Night," "The Iceman Cometh," and "Moon for the Misbegotten."

"By adding O'Neill's house to the favored list, and by opening the doors for it to become a future center for the performing arts, Congress has overcome a traditional government bias against awarding our literary heritage the recognition it deserves."

Cranston said there are no federal projects of comparable scope for the performing arts outside Washington, D.C.

Rep. George Miller Jr., (D-Cal.) introduced a Tao House bill in the House of Representatives and guided it to passage earlier this month.

In signing the bill to law, President Ford called the establishment of the O'Neill site, "a living memorial to his name."

The President also said, "This park will remind Americans for many years to come not only of his contribution, but those of many artists who have added immeasurably to the wisdom and pleasure of all mankind."

Who says no one involved anymore?

Leshner News Bureau

SAN RAMON — Karlen Mueller of Bollinger Canyon Road, San Ramon, was too busy Monday to talk to sheriff's deputies about his house burglary.

Mueller was out chasing and catching the pair he said carried out over $1,200 worth of equipment.

Deputies arrived at Mueller's house Monday and began collecting evidence of the break-in and questioning witnesses.

One witness said Mueller was off chasing the suspects toward his barn. The deputies went to investigate and met Mueller coming up the road, with two suspects in tow.

Booked for investigation of burglary were Kenneth Scott Thompson, and Frank Edward Souza, both 18, of San Ramon.

Thompson listed an address of 320 Kingsley Place, and Souza, 8985 Alcosta Blvd., Apt. 166.

All but $30 cash was recovered, deputies said.

Chicken concert slated

Kathy and her father, Howard Neely of Pleasanton invite valley residents to buy a ticket to the Pleasanton Cultural Arts Council's "Chicken on the Green" scheduled for Sunday at 2 p.m. at Wayside Park, First and Neal Street, Pleasanton. The $2 ticket entitles the holder to a Kentucky

Fried Chicken Dinner, beverage and dessert. A pops Concert featuring the Pleasanton Community Band also will be held. Half of the proceeds will go toward benefitting the community band uniform fund and half for equipment and finishing of the Cultural Arts Center.

Teachers call 'slowdown'

Pleasanton Joint School District teachers have decided to boycott school and district meetings and extracurricular duties starting today, in reaction to the lack of a contract settlement.

In an ad run in yesterday's Times, accompanied by a press release, the Amador Valley Teachers Association (AVTA) said teachers unanimously voted on Oct. 12 (and their representative council on Oct. 14) to reject the district's latest salary proposal.

AVTA president Tom Zach said teacher reps resultingly decided to take the boycott measures.

The council urged all district teachers to "report to school one-half hour before classes begin and leave school one-half hour after classes are dismissed. No school or district meetings or extracurricular duties will be performed at the schools outside these hours until a fair contract is negotiated."

Zach says that on Oct. 11 teacher negotiators "presented to the district a five-day compromise package in which we offered to drop our agency shop proposal for this year, despite the fact that it could result in a financial burden for the members of the AVTA."

"In return we hoped that the district would accept our compromise proposal on binding arbitration, in which the power of the arbitrator was significantly restricted. Furthermore, we stated a willingness to further compromise on these issues should the district respond with significant compromises."

Zach adds that, "That same day we were notified that the district accepted all of our compromises, while making small compromises themselves on other items. They refused to compromise on binding arbitration, to which they remained adamantly opposed."

Pleasanton teachers were not called an impasse to date, like teacher units in the Murray and Amador school districts have.

Zach and Superintendent Bruce Newlin discussed four collective bargaining issues last week at a session videotaped at the district media center.

The videotape of that discussion-debate, attended only by valley newspapermen and videotape crew members, is now available to organizations in the community.

Persons wishing to view the discussion should contact Robert Scruggs at the district media center at Pleasanton School.

Heated session for Murray board

DUBLIN — Members of Residents - In - Action and teachers unit president Bob Kroetch assailed the Murray School District board Monday night over an administrator's pay and dates for mediation sessions.

Kroetch and assistant superintendent Heinz Gewing clashed briefly over the availability of administration negotiators and an abortive session last Friday.

The Murray Teachers Association president initially asked board president Ted Woy who teacher representatives are supposed to negotiate with — Keith Breon or Gewing. Woy reiterated that either one could negotiate for the administration.

The district is now in mediation and the next session with state appointed conciliator Mike West is Thursday.

Lenore Holmes of the RIA demanded the board answer in writing by the next board meeting several questions on the pay and duties of director of auxiliary services Wally Moreskine.

The RIA claims Moreskine was given a 25 per cent increase in pay to $28,020. The groups asks a change in salary to reflect just cost of living and a "reasonable" merit increase.

Reading from a prepared text, the RIA asked, "What change in scope of job and/or improved performance justifies this significant increase in pay? Was this increase pre-scheduled? What is the pay range for this position? (director of auxiliary services), Who recommended this increase? How does this position compare in responsibility with that of assistant superintendent?, and Would or could a conversion increase the work load of this position?"

The board also learned that Superintendent Donald Williams is recuperating at home after a flareup in a heart condition 10 days ago.

Williams said Tuesday afternoon his doctor at Kaiser in Walnut Creek has said he must remain at home for at least another two to three weeks. At the end of that period of time he will be checked again to determine if it is advisable for him to return to work.

The district is also without the full-time services of business manager Phillip Chubb. His resignation for early retirement was accepted two weeks ago.

Chubb is now on vacation status and reportedly visiting the Soviet Union with his wife.

He is expected back next week. Gewing reported the Valley Chris-

Santa Rita plan bustling with development

PLEASANTON — Now that the city has moved to annex 16 acres on old Santa Rita Road, that area will come before the planning commission Nov. 3 with a spate of development proposals.

Doug Huntze has an application for a quick stop food store and two gasoline pumps at the intersection of old Santa Rita Road and Tassajara Road. The location is now a vacant lot.

Huntze would install a 2,000 square foot market, the two pump gas island, a 6,400 square foot retail sales building and off street parking and landscaping on the site.

Across Santa Rita Road and a little to the north, the owner of Adams Tile and Roofing is proposing construction of a 14,000 square foot building in front of the existing structure.

And just north of the Adams property, Joe Madden proposes to build three one-story commercial service buildings of 8,800 square feet, 24,000 square feet and 13,800 square feet.

All three parcels are subject to flooding because improvements have not been made to the Tassajara Canal in that area. So far the zoning applicants haven't told the city how they will solve the flooding problem. Zone 7 is committed to finishing work on the canal to Interstate 580, but has not made it a priority item, according to the city planning staff.

There is also a traffic problem in the area. Old Santa Rita Road is a two lane road and needs widening if more commercial development is to occur in the area, said a planning staffer.

The Madden and Adams parcels are not in the city now, but are part of a 16 acre annexation approved by the Local Agency Formation Commission and yet to be approved by the city council.

The property owners are looking for "prezoning" prior to coming into the city. Several commercial uses already exist in the 16 acre area, including a nursery and a rental shop.

The city manager has declared that none of the three proposed projects needs an environmental impact report because none would make a significant impact on the environment as far as the EIR guidelines are concerned.

The Old Santa Rita Road area isn't the only part of town with commercial activity. Pleasanton Garbage Service on Busch Road on the east side of the city, plans two warehouse buildings, not related to the firm's garbage transfer station nearby.

The structures would have concrete walls and one would cover 36,000 square feet, the other 19,000 square feet on the three acre site.

tian Center would like more details on the 27-acre property known as the Dolan school site.

Trustee Linda Jeffery presented fellow board members with a report she had compiled on the Dublin School pool. The pool has not been in use for more than two years and reportedly has deteriorated badly.

The district is seeking a community group to take over the facility with the proviso they bring it up to standard.

In other business, the board heard a detailed report from Moreskine on the educationally handicapped program, approved an update of a civil defense regulation, learned about a radio communication system for district buses, and approved a substitute teacher list containing 75 names.

— by Al Fischer

Access would be off Busch Road on a 30 foot driveway.

No environmental impact report is required for the development, though the negative declaration notes that "until El Chorro Road becomes a public thoroughfare" traffic generated by the use will have to use Santa Rita Road, Valley Avenue and Busch Road, "causing some problems, especially with noise."

Livermore roasted by supervisors

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — The Livermore Unitarian Fellowship, tucked quietly off First Street beyond Trevarno Road, apparently will lead the county in an assault on the city's sewer connection policy.

County supervisors were unanimous yesterday in their indignation over a Livermore Planning Department list of "side conditions" that will boost the church's connection costs from $3,000 to more than $30,000.

Faced with the request for a septic tank permit for the 40-year-old property that church leaders plan on rebuilding, supervisors said they will use the city's laundry list of conditions to "embarrass" the city in their fight with the State Regional Water Quality Control Board.

Caught in the middle of the fight is church spokesman Bob Latham. He told the board yesterday that his fellowship is rebuilding the "old country house" to accommodate about 150 members. Rebuilding will not necessarily expand "the level of use," he said, but it may effect "the quality of the building's use."

Although on county property, the church is within 200 feet of the city's sewer system, and hence must connect to it rather than install another septic tank system.

Latham said his congregation is budgeted to pay some $3,000 for the connection, including horizontal boring under a road that separates the church property from the sewer lines.

The city, he claimed, said it would be "no problem." But once the connection application had been made, city planners tacked on a list of "side conditions" that will run the bill up to more than $30,000.

The list, according to Latham, includes landscaping, curbs and gutters, fire hydrants and street lighting, even though the area around the building is clear for 1,000 feet in all directions.

The city's conditions, he said "scrub the whole project."

But the board sees a larger issue. City officials have written the state's Regional Water Quality Control Board complaining that the board is "ringing the city" with septic tanks.

But board members say the city has them in an untenable position.

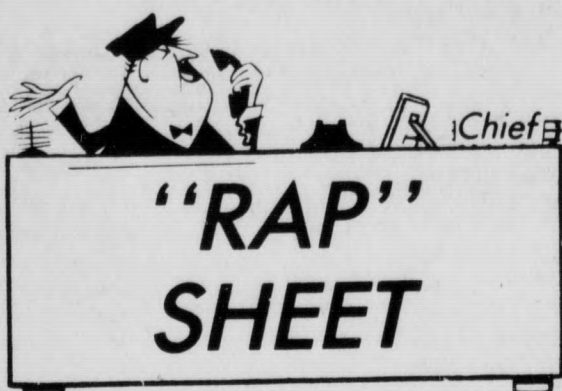

The church is willing to connect with the city's sewer system, but is blocked by the city's fees. In that light, supervisors say they find it "unreasonable" to turn down the church's request for a septic tank.

"Livermore's changes, reverses and inconsistencies" are making a mess of "rational planning," charged supervisor Joseph Bort. He called for "hard-headed discussions" among the county's and city's planning commissions and staffs.

"There is nothing in the city's conditions that relates to water quality," he added.

Board chairman Fred Cooper was even more adamant. He wants to fire off a letter to the regional water board in rebuttal to the city's attack.

Goods worth $5,775 taken from garage

LIVERMORE — Burglars entered an unlocked garage door to an Orange Way residence sometime late Friday and took $5,775 in valuables, police reported yesterday.

Raymond Medeiros Freitas told police he was in the process of moving and had stored several boxes of motorcycle parts and stereo gear in the garage. When he returned to the house early Saturday, he discovered the theft.

Missing items include Sansui brand speakers and stereo receiver, Dual turntable, and Akai brand speakers and reel to reel tape recorder, all engraved with Freitas' Social Security number, 557-64-8937.

Other stolen items include a 1969 Harley Davidson engine and transmission, chrome tube frame and other accessories, and 50 prerecorded tapes.

There are no clues in the theft.

Television lifted from Holiday Inn unit

LIVERMORE — A $450 color television was taken from a room at the Holiday Inn at Interstate 580 and Springtown Boulevard by burglars who forced a door to gain entry.

Spokesmen said the room had not been rented in at least three days, during which time the television had apparently been taken.

It is described as a Motorola Quasar 19-inch color television with "H.I.L. 241" inscribed on the top. There are no clues.

Radio taken from van on Crown Chevrolet lot

DUBLIN — A $325 radio was cut from the dashboard of a 1976 Chevrolet van parked in Crown Chevrolet's new car lot recently, deputies reported.

Burglars entered the unlocked van and cut the radio from the dashboard with a blunt instrument, possibly a screwdriver. It is described as an am/fm/8-track unit, valued at $325.

There are no suspects in the theft.

Television taken from Highland Oaks Drive residence

PLEASANTON — While the Donald Barker family attended a local soccer match, burglars forced their way into the Barker's Highland Oaks Drive home and stole a color television.

Police said burglars apparently entered an unlocked side garage door, then pried open an interior door to gain entrance to the house.

Missing is a Zenith 19-inch color television valued at $450. There are no suspects in the case.

Frozen meat taken from garage freezer

PLEASANTON — Burglars took 210 pounds of frozen roasts and steaks from a Mockingbird Lane home here Friday, police report.

Bernhard Roth told officers that the garage door and freezer door were both left unlocked. The meat was valued at $225.

A single frozen chicken was left behind, police said. There are no clues.

VCSD tightens code on sewer charges

DUBLIN — Section 7.3.04 of the Valley Community Services District (VCSD) Sewerage Code has been amended at the recommendation of VCSD General Manager Paul Ryan.

This measure was adopted Tuesday night in an effort to strengthen the VCSD code relating to certain types of sewer service charges. One type pertains to customers not receiving any water service from VCSD or East Bay Municipal Utilities District. The other is related to customers receiving partial service from the two agencies.

Regarding commercial, industrial or institutional service, the following amendments were made.

(a) Minimum charge of $11.50 per bi-monthly period for water use up to 3,000 cubic feet.

(b) Additional charge of $1.92 per 500 cubic feet of water used in excess of 3,000 cubic feet per bi-monthly period. Computation will be made to the next highest 500-foot multiples.

(c) Charges for partial service will be computed on the basis of actual water consumption.

Unless the user has a flow meter or other approved measuring device installed at his own expense, charges will be determined by the director of public works. These charges will be based on an estimate related to similarly situated properties.

The director of public works will also have jurisdiction over non-water or partial water users not related to a commercial, industrial or institutional facility.

Water used solely for irrigation purposes by commercial, industrial or institutional customers falls into a separate category. It will not be included in determining average monthly use.

Livermore chamber—'yes on U'

LIVERMORE — The Livermore Chamber of Commerce yesterday unanimously endorsed Measure U, the $28 million valley wastewater pipeline project, for passage on Nov. 2.

sponsoring agency, the Livermore - Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA), gave a brief presentation supporting the measure. Without a dissenting argument, the Chamber board voted 14-0 to endorse the project.

If passed by valley voters, revenue bonds worth $8.3 million would be sold to pay the local share of the pipeline. The pipe would carry treated effluent from the valley to an outfall in San Francisco Bay and stop groundwater pollution of Fremont's water supply.

Free senior bus a busy one

PLEASANTON — Local senior citizens have been on the go despite the valley's relative handicap in public transportation, thanks to a free senior citizens bus service provided by the city recreation department and Alameda County revenue sharing.

Nan Cohan, the driver - dispatcher for the program, said that approximately 100 seniors use the service. An average of 22 passengers daily are given transportation that serves their individual needs.

Each service means pickup and return usually and patrons go to more than one place a day so it is not unusual for a driver to make 50 contacts a day.

The van averages 100 miles a day if the route remains local. An excursion to SunValley, Southland or other distant destinations brings the mileage higher. Two vans are pressed into service on busy days to meet all commitments.

Two van drivers, Pat Heim and Peggy Perry, do more than transport their passengers. Care is taken to provide a stool and a helpful hand to any patron in need of a little extra help. When returning from shopping trips, drivers will assist with packages or groceries from the van into the home.

Transportation is provided for a wide variety of activities.

ties. A typical schedule in a week may include trips to doctors, social security office, grocery stores, bowling, beauty shops, lawyers, the post office, Senior VIP meetings, choral rehearsals, an optometrist.

One of the most popular daily runs is the trip to the nutrition luncheon sponsored by Alameda County at Pleasanton Gardens. Those seniors participating in the program not only enjoy a well prepared luncheon but appreciate the social aspect of travel and contact with a larger group.

Seniors who have transportation needs may call Dial-a-Bus, 846-8175, Monday through Friday, noon to 5 p.m. Try to call at least one day ahead so schedules can be arranged.

LARPD night is on

LIVERMORE — LARPD Candidate Lee Lambert has confirmed plans to hold a candidate's night next Tuesday, but one of his competitors has doubts.

Lambert and Ernie Rodriguez last week discussed the possibility of having a candidates' night — sponsored by the candidates when the two realized no community groups had planned such a forum.

Lambert yesterday told The Times, "It's on!" He said the open forum would be held 7 p.m., Oct. 26, at the Emperor's Garden Restaurant, 2180 Third St., Livermore.

He indicated Ron Monks and Bob Hebert were planning to attend. Incumbent LARPD Chairman Marlin Pound is out of town on business, but plans to return later this week.

Lambert said Gibb Souza, Livermore Jaycees president, would moderate the panel, although the forum was not to be a Jaycee event. Format calls for a five to seven minute statement by each candidate, with questions from spectators to follow.

Rodriguez told The Times he will meet with his election committee before deciding whether or not to attend the forum.

His chief complaint is that Lambert made arrangements on his own without coordinating with the other candidates, then asked a friend and fellow Jaycee to be the moderator.

Rodriguez expressed concern the forum could become a political football aimed in the direction of more front page publicity for Lambert.

Tax rates drop but the bill keeps climbing

Leshar News Bureau
MARTINEZ — Cumulative tax rates are down as much as 20 per cent in the last six years, but the reductions have not kept up with the rapid inflation in property values.

In Concord, a sample tax code area rate this year is $11.897 per $100 of assessed property value. Last year in the same tax code area, it was $12.011 while in 1970-71 the rate was $14.876. In the same time, the appraisal of a typical home has gone up about 65 per cent, from about $33,000 in 1970 to $50,000 last year and about $55,000 this year. The Assessor's Office advises that appraisals in the area are running about 10 per cent behind actual market value.

The owner of that home would have paid about $1,152 to all taxing agencies in 1970-71, using the $750 exemption in existence at that time.

Last year, the owner of the then - $50,000 home would have paid about $1,291, the homeowner's exemption having been raised to $1,750.

This year, with the additional 10 per cent reappraisal, the bill will be about $1,427.

In the San Ramon Valley, where reappraisals averaged 35 per cent, the owner of a home in Danville valued last year at $50,000 would have paid about $1,430 at property taxes to all agencies at the 1975-76 rate.

This year's typical rate in the area is down 6.3 per cent, but the home, up 35 per cent, is now valued at $67,500. The taxes at the lower rate will be about $1,885, an increase of $455.

The formula for determining the taxes to be paid:

- Take the value of the home and divide by 4.
- Subtract the $1,750 homeowners exemption.
- Divide by 100.
- Multiply that figure by the tax rate.

Fire safety tips

Electricity which acts up a little by blinking or blowing fuses is trying to tell its user something, the Pleasanton Fire Prevention Center reminds you.

It's a call for help and it's time to answer any of these distress signals you see in your home.

Dimming lights and blowing fuses mean overloaded and possibly faulty circuits. The help needed in this situation is to use fewer appliances and not bigger fuses and to have wiring and appliances checked by an expert. If recommended, modernize service facilities in your home to meet present electrical code standards.

Balky appliances may be acute fire and shock hazards. Take them out of service immediately and repair or replace them.

Watch for the commonest of hazards, frayed cords and broken plugs, and replace them.

Be alert to danger signals and keep your home out of the annual statistics of electrical fires.

Veterans' Day memorial slated

LIVERMORE — A big redwood tree will be planted at the Veterans Administration hospital on Arroyo Road, in honor of all Medal of Honor holders.

The tree planting is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Monday. According to VA hospital director James M. Fleener, a 12-foot California redwood tree will be planted as a tribute to the Bicentennial and to Veterans' Day as well as in honor of medalists.

Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, retired holder of the nation's highest award, the congressional Medal of Honor, has been invited as honored guest. The public is also invited.

Helping to arrange the ceremony are Burt Archer, chairman of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; Charlie Stout, Jim La Vally, Edward Vince, Bart Gilmore and Ron Mellon, VA hospital employees; Carl Uibelhoer, Military Order of the Purple Heart; and Fred Graf, Disabled American Veterans.

More alien arrests

PLEASANTON — The Border Patrol agents are doing their best — they arrested 5,215 illegal aliens last month in the 49-county Livermore Sector — but almost a quarter of a million people are still in northern California who don't belong here.

Chief Patrol Agent Herbert E. Walsh says of the total arrested, three-quarters were illegally holding jobs, most of them at $2.50 to $4.50 an hour.

There were 368 arrests more last September. Walsh attributes the decline to a new program recently commenced by the Immigration Service of interior repatriation of Mexican nationals which requires more officer processing time.

There was a slight decline in the number of arrests since August, considered an insignificant number as the harvest season progressed.

The local office at Camp Parks is headquarters for the Livermore Station, which is part of the Livermore Sector. Counties in the Livermore Station include Alameda, northern Santa Clara, Contra Costa, Marin, Napa, Sonoma, Lake, Mendocino, Trinity, Humboldt and Del Norte. In those counties, a total of 193 arrests were made including 132 employed people.

Vandals stop the show

DUBLIN — Television sets blinked off the air for an hour Monday night when vandals destroyed equipment at the transmission site of Tele-Vue, the cable TV company for Dublin, Livermore and Pleasanton.

The outage completely shut down service to Livermore and Pleasanton customers. It also blacked out "Showtime," the pay TV package in Dublin which features late run motion pictures.

According to Tele-Vue's Dan Andaya, vandals broke into the company's micro-wave transmission site at Wiedeman Ranch off Norris Canyon Road in San Ramon.

Two receiver-monitors and micro-wave transmission equipment were destroyed. Damage was estimated at $3,000. Repair crews restored television service an hour after breakdown.

Contra Costa County sheriff's deputies are investigating the vandalism.

Housing authority looks at Prop. 1

PLEASANTON — The housing authority will discuss Proposition 1, a measure to increase the bond-selling capacity of the state for local housing authority construction, tonight.

Executive Director Michael Parsons will ask commissioners to pass a resolution supporting the proposition. A law passed in 1975 authorized $450 million worth of bond-selling capacity by the state and also stipulated this proposition would appear on the ballot this fall to ask voters for an additional $500 million in bond-selling ability.

The housing authority meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the Komandorski Village Community Hall at Komandorski Village on Dougherty Road.

Amador open house

Planning for Amador Valley High School's annual open house Wednesday, Oct. 27, are principal Ralph Laird, center, and, from left, June Winter, assistant principal; Pat Sather, librarian; Laird; Tom Himmelberg, assistant principal, and Harvey Hanson, social studies teacher. The evening will begin with a meeting of parents in the auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Following the meeting teachers will be in the classrooms to meet with visitors. Several departments will present special programs. The advanced jazz band will perform, there will be demonstrations in the computer room and a ceramics demonstration in the art department. The drama department will be rehearsing their next presentation, "You Can't Take It With You." Student projects will be on display in the shops and art departments. Refreshments will be served in the library throughout the evening. Open house will be conducted from 7:30 through 9:30.

So, what's new?

There's a new pair of twins in Pleasanton.

Richard and Jean Madrid of Pleasanton had twin boys Oct. 13 at John Muir Memorial Hospital, Walnut Creek.

Other arrivals at Muir included a boy Oct. 7, born to Everett and Kathy Allen of Livermore; and a boy born Oct. 10 to Carl and Susan Bartel of San Ramon.

A long list of births at Valley Memorial Hospital, Livermore, includes:

Sept. 27: Charles and Audrey Lee, 16965 Tesla Road, Livermore, a boy.

Sept. 28: Gary and Sharon Collins, 7824 Ironwood Drive, Dublin, a boy.

Sept. 29: Henry and Cheryl Bernardo, 5226 Crestline Way, Pleasanton, a boy.

Sept. 30: Ronnie and Cheryl Hanks, 1533 Sierra-ville Ave., San Jose, a boy; Michael and Kathleen Richard, 3996 Stanford Way, Livermore, a boy.

Oct. 1, Douglas and Barbara Schroeder, 267 Yosemite Drive, Livermore, a girl.

Oct. 2: Dave and Paula Fluker, 7743 Canterbury Lane, Dublin, and Donald and Lydia Brown, 51 Murdell Lane, Livermore, girls.

Oct. 3: Richard and Diana Spay, 5992 Corte Es-pada, Pleasanton, and Michael and Judith Malinowski, 1009 Via Madrid, Livermore, boys.

Oct. 4: Mark and Deborah Dominguez, 5255 Norma Way, Livermore, a girl; Steven and Sandra Oldfield, 7254 Valley Trails Drive, Pleasanton, a boy.

Oct. 5: Larry and Bonnie Farris, 1037 Portola Ave., Livermore, a boy.

Oct. 6: Jerry and Judith Rogers, 620 Egret Road, Livermore, a boy; Glenn and Lucia Miller, 7684 Olive Drive, Pleasanton, a girl; Ralph and Caryn Aspeland, 3455 Zion Canyon Court, Pleasanton, a boy.

Oct. 7: Richard and Edith Gage, 2517 Regent Road, Livermore, a girl; David and Mary Koop, 9676 Ashby Way, San Ramon, a boy.

Oct. 8: Paul and Rosanne DePue, 485 Lincoln Ave., Livermore, a girl; John and Ruth Hunt, 1938 Neptune Road, Livermore, a boy; Robert and Sharon Schuck, 4814 Harrison St., Pleasanton, a girl.

Oct. 9: Mike and Pam Wendleton, 422 East Cleveland St., Stockton, a boy.

Oct. 10: Kenneth and Mary Croft, 747 Palm Circle Drive, Tracy, a boy;

Victor and Sadie Gilmore, 1366 Lambaren St., Livermore, a girl; William and Dorothy Kennedy, 527 South K St., Livermore, a boy; Karl and Cynthia Re-ger, 269 Junction Ave., Livermore, a boy.

PG & E scholarships' deadline is nearing

Valley high-school seniors face an Oct. 31 deadline in applying for $4,000 scholarships from Pacific Gas and Electric Co.

In the PG&E service area, 17 scholarships will be awarded, including 13 regional scholarships, two scholarships for children of PG&E employees and two special recognition scholarships.

Each of 34 runners-up will receive a $500 award.

Dr. David B. Stewart, director of educational activities for PG&E, said students may obtain application forms and information from high school counselors or PG&E offices. The office serving Pleasanton, Dublin, Livermore and San Ramon is located at 988 Murrieta Blvd., Livermore.

Final judging will take place in San Francisco next April.

Alisal School PTA's 'Spook House' to open

PLEASANTON — The Alisal School PTA will have a "Spook House" setup Oct. 25-29 to thrill and chill little Halloween ghosts and goblins in the community.

The Spook House will be located in the Bear's Lair room of the school and will be conducted from 3 to 6 p.m. each day except Oct. 27 when the hours will be 5 to 7 p.m. Admission of 50 cents will allow children two trips through the Spook House and a free bag of popcorn.

A snack bar will also be setup.

On the 27th, the Alisal School PTA will also host a spaghetti dinner in the school cafeteria from 5 to 7 p.m. Admission is $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for children. Dinner includes spaghetti, bread, salad, coffee bar and dessert.

Schools close on vets' day

All schools in the Valley except Pleasanton and Amador district schools will be closed Oct. 25 for Veterans Day.

Livermore, San Ramon and Murray schools will be observing the federal Monday holiday instead of the traditional Nov. 11 date.

The two holdouts, Amador Joint Union High School District and the Pleasanton Elementary district, will observe Nov. 11 instead.

Kids' health carnival

SAN RAMON — Would your kid like to go inside an ambulance without being sick?

See a skeleton two weeks before Halloween?

Bring him or her to the Family Medical Center's "Health Carnival for Kids" this afternoon.

Children will be invited to watch puppet shows; run a physical fitness obstacle course; see films; take a health screening test; listen to their heartbeat; tour emergency vehicles including a brand-new ambulance; view displays and see a real skeleton.

Nutritious snacks will be served.

Many school and youth groups are coming to the carnival by reservation. Parents of children coming in a group should send a note with their child indicating consent for the child to participate in a diabetes screening test.

The carnival will be 1-5 p.m., free, at 9260 Alcosta Blvd. in San Ramon.

Organizations participating are: VCSD fire department; Red Cross; Tri-Cities Ambulance; YMCA; American Cancer Society; Lung Association; American Society of Preventive Dentistry; Dietetic Association; Dublin Junior Women's Club; Hotline and the Heart Association.

Members of the Valley Memorial Hospital Auxiliary and student nurses will be assisting at the carnival.

Derby

MARTINEZ — Walnut Creek police officer John Fitch took the lead in the Seventh Annual Concord Police Fish Derby during the weekend, reeling in a 36-pound striped bass.

BART officer Dan O'Connor placed second with a 26-pound catch.

Leadership. It doesn't come from just smiles and promises. It comes from strength. From an understanding of people's problems and needs. And from years and years of experience. That's why Home Savings has grown to be America's largest. And why it's a good secure place for you to put your money and your trust. Here are some more reasons why.

Now 7 Billion Dollars Strong.

With over a million accounts, and more assets than any savings and loan institution in the nation, it's no wonder more and more people are saving at Home. They know how safe it feels to be with Old Dependable, where accounts are insured to $40,000 and no one has ever lost a penny.

The Highest Interest Allowed by Law.

They know how profitable it is, too. Home pays over a million dollars in interest every day, at rates much higher than those offered by any bank. In fact, one account even lets you double your money in less than nine years. And unlike banks that may pay interest only quarterly, and charge fees for certain withdrawals, Home lets you make deposits and withdrawals any time you like. There are no fees, and you earn full interest day in to day out. There are substantial penalties for early withdrawals from term accounts but this applies to interest only.

ANNUAL RATE	ANNUAL YIELD*	TERMS
7 3/4% 	8.06%	6 years, $1000 or more
7 1/2% 	7.79%	4 years, $1000 or more

Privileges of the Silver Circle.

With a qualifying balance, you can step into Home's Silver Circle and help yourself to extra savings. Silver Circle members can purchase cars at fleet prices; take advantage of special international travel opportunities; buy insurance at group rates; and receive preferred rates at many resorts, hotels and entertainment events.

Lots of Free Services.

When you're number one, you can afford to give more. That's why we give so many extras, like free traveler's checks; money orders; notary service; free trust deed and note collection services; and free checking account with major participating banks—all for savers with qualifying balances. We also have automatic savings deposits; automatic loan payments; save-by-mail service; social security direct deposit; and payroll savings plans—free to all our valued customers.

Free Presidential Campaign Buttons, Too.

When you visit a Home office right now, be sure to see our Historical Campaign Button Exhibit. It's a nostalgic trip through American political history, featuring 75 buttons from the great Presidential campaigns. Take your choice as a souvenir with our compliments.

Number One in the Nation in Both Savings and Loans.

Open Saturday, October 9, 9 AM to 1 PM. Member: FEDERAL Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation. Accounts are insured to $40,000 for an individual, up to $560,000 for a family of four. Member: FEDERAL Home Loan Bank System.

Depression glass Etc.

Collectors' sentimental journey

By JEAN McKENNA

Remember when milk seemed to taste better when mom poured it from the blue pitcher? Or the ice cream that seemed richer when spooned out of the pale pink saucer delicately laced with flowers?

If you were a child of the Depression, you probably grew up with tank glass in a rainbow of colors, molded into a hundred familiar shapes — from everyday plates and measuring cups to candy dishes and lamp bases.

If you ran a household on a shoestring during the Depression, you probably discarded your inexpensive set of glass dishes as soon as you could afford china. Or perhaps you recycled the set into a "crushed glass" coffee table top.

In the days before the Plastic Revolution, "glassware for the masses" was turned out more or less cheaply in great quantities and an infinite variety of shapes, according to Collector Pat Rochin of Livermore. Today, the homely charm of Depression glass manufactured during the Twenties and Thirties has attracted such a following of admirers that they're making copies of it.

A single bowl in the rare Red American Sweetheart pattern may now sell for $1,000. On the other hand, many other items of the bubbly, imperfect glass aren't worth very much.

"Collecting it is a hobby that can be fun without costing you a lot of money," declares Mrs. Rochin who started acquiring Depression glass 20 years ago as a young housewife with a slim budget. "All my friends could afford antiques, so when I went with them to shop I would spend $2 on pink glass. It was pretty."

As a wedding gift, her mother had been given a set of dishes in Pink Cherry Blossom, but had discarded all but a cake plate which Pat fondly claimed. From that start, Pat was able to reassemble a complete set in the pattern with pieces acquired at garage sales and flea markets.

Then in 1969 a woman named Hazel Marie Weatherman wrote a book on "Colored Glassware of the Depression Era" and overnight these things were worth something," Pat explains. "Depression glass was so common before that no one valued it, until Hazel pointed out that it was becoming hard to find."

Pat's love of what she calls "funky functional" blossomed since the last of her four children has grown up and left home. She replaced most of the more expensive conventional furniture in her home with antique "bargains" beautifully refinished by her husband, Greg, who has been involved in the hobby for less than a year.

Together they would like to recreate the look of the Thirties throughout their modest ranch-style home, with overstuffed sofa, old light fixtures and cabinets bursting with curious and colorful glassware.

"I was raised by my grandmother, and these things make me feel at home," explains Pat. "But I have my waterbed, too."

Pat's penchant for pretty collectibles includes the more finely finished glassware such as Fostoria, Heisey and Cambridge. However, for the beginner she doesn't recommend a purchase of any glassware until you have gained some basic background. "There are lots of books on the subject in the library."

An informed collector may pull a treasure out from among the Mason jars at a garage sale, or avoid a costly mistake over a copy.

Another way to gain knowledge is through the

Assemblyman Mori — second term

It is a rare treat these days to hear a politician stand before a business group and advise them "consumer action is getting the big play in Sacramento these days." It is also refreshing to find a legislator willing to look a horse race booster from his hometown square in the eye with the admonishment that "gambling of any kind, even legalized horse racing, is a poor way to raise public funds."

S. Floyd Mori has always had that ability to tell it like it is, whatever the audience. In the two years he has served in the State Legislature, Assemblyman Mori has made his mark as a Democrat sometimes willing to buck the majority, or a rookie willing to go against the governor, when he felt it necessary to preserve his own integrity.

Floyd Mori bucked the first "Agricultural Labor Board" when he found that popular Democratic platform wanting, and his early warnings on that score have proven painfully accurate. Today Assemblyman Mori is one of few Democrats willing to reject Proposition 14, the "Cesar Chavez farm labor program," because Mori contends the legislature is better prepared to represent all the people in managing such a sensitive board.

Floyd Mori makes some Democrats mad, and he doubtless leaves Republicans less than satisfied. He is a bona fide spokesman for the minority who often espouses conservative philosophy ... consistent with his background as a professor of economics.

And through all of this, Floyd Mori has been accessible ... to the press, to his constituents, and to his critics.

The Times was an early and enthusiastic supporter of Floyd Mori when he first sought state office. We have observed him carefully and even critically since, but we have never had reason to regret that earlier support.

Floyd Mori deserves broad and enthusiastic support in his bid for a second term in the State Assembly. It is one way the people have of recording their demand for honest, forthright representation, regardless of politics.

The Post Office

In an era of "bland bureaucracy" and the "faceless federal facility," it is refreshing to look upon the Valley's newest governmental office with a degree of enthusiasm, warmth even.

Pleasanton Post Office is so attractive as to be almost beautiful, or as close to a triumph in federal architecture as we are likely to encounter. Massive but inviting, functional but handsomely landscaped, the facility on Black Avenue at Santa Rita Road is a marked change from those spartan postal centers built in the last several decades.

While we don't condone flamboyant use of the taxpayers' money, still a building that is going to serve us for half a century or more ought to be able to amortize that investment while giving us something more than a concrete box.

About all we need now is a postal crew that gives us a smile to match those surroundings. The U.S. Mail — by whatever name — is still one of our more important daily services. We know it's never going to get any cheaper, but that doesn't prevent it from being a pleasant experience.

Teacher arbitrations

Editor, The Times:

As the wife of a Dublin High School teacher, I am only now realizing the facts regarding the collective-bargaining issue of the Amador Valley High School District. And the more I learn, the more I feel the urgency of the issues at hand.

I read that Mr. Newlin contends that the present system of settling teacher grievances "appears to be working well." I ask, for whom? For the school board and district administration? Certainly not for the teachers.

Binding arbitration is advantageous to all. It provides the teachers and the board with legal recourse for disputes through the calling in of an impartial mediator, a state employee qualified to settle labor disputes. Binding arbitration obligates both parties to the decision which the mediator reaches after a thorough examination of all the facts. The problem is handled while classes continue without interruption. Strikes are illegal, courts are avoided, both of which cost everyone time and money.

Why do the teachers feel so strongly about this? There have been more than a few examples in the district where binding arbitration was morally necessary. Promises have been made to teachers, agreements reached by both parties, only to have the board fail to stand behind the decision. Teachers are not trying to usurp authority, but they have a right to the as-urance of fairness and honesty in decision making.

Understandably, the board would object to binding arbitration. Why shouldn't they when they now have the final say. But binding arbitration would grant protection to BOTH sides. Certainly the present system is working well as far as Mr. Newlin is concerned, for it frees him and the board from the burden of having an impartial mediator examine all the facts.

As for Mr. Newlin himself, as Superintendent of schools he, more than anyone, should be aware of what is happening in the schools. However, it became evident after the school board meeting last Tuesday night that Mr. Newlin seldom shows his face in the classroom. He is removed from what is really happening. Obviously the charges rang true, for Friday Mr. Newlin appeared in the classrooms at Dublin High, the first time many of the teachers had ever seen him there.

One last point, Mr. Breen, the attorney hired by the board, is a school board member himself, one in which binding arbitration is practiced. What's more, he personally believes that binding arbitration is necessary for the employee but has been hired to argue to the contrary.

It seems that binding arbitration is not such a "minor issue" after all, but critical, and in the best interests of everyone.

Hindsight/Foresight

Kids the losers

The age group that can least afford it has now suffered the loss of a facility.

In a way it is a tragedy, this loss of Neil Armstrong School in San Ramon.

Its insides consumed by flames, quite possibly set by young arsonists with distorted views of themselves and the world around them, the 600-plus students at Armstrong will now have to pay the price.

But that "price" will also be borne by dedicated teachers, administrators and parents who lose hundreds of thousands of dollars in supplies, educational materials as well as a central meeting place in the community.

The families of San Ramon are not the only ones losing out in this day and age.

Every parent and every child in a district where teacher salary negotiations are stalled is a potential "loser" — thank goodness not as disastrously or as suddenly as those in the area of Neil Armstrong School.

The impasse and continued negotiations situations in the Amador, Murray and Pleasanton districts are certainly not helping anyone! Except possibly the pocketbooks of the legal counsel for the respective districts.

As flippant as it may sound, grooming one's son or daughter to be a member of the legal profession might not be a half-bad idea these days. It certainly can be super-lucrative.

When one considers the Consumer Price Index and then notes the "stance" of Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Jr. on allocations for education, one soon discerns that children in the lower grades may indeed be the real losers.

They are being innocently snarled in a mountain of red tape by elders demanding their own pound of flesh, whether it be increased pay and benefits, ideas for new programs or a bigger slice of the "I'm King" pie.

Has anyone consulted the parent of a young person lately? Are boards of trustees truly representative of all taxpayers? Or is their lot to be that of a buffer between administration and teachers — and infrequently a pin cushion for parents?

Somewhere along the line, some school boards have lost touch with the communities they serve.

For, if the lines of communication were stronger, there's a chance some of these impasses would have been settled by now and, quite possibly, the persons responsible for that Armstrong fire might have been "reached" before last Sunday's tragic occurrence.

Letters to the Times

Mori's opponent

Editor, The Times:

I noticed in your paper that my opponent, S. Floyd Mori, was to speak to the Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce on the economy. I should think this would have been a very appropriate topic while he was an economics teacher at Chabot College for he seemed to have a pretty good grasp of things back then.

Now that he has become an Assemblyman I feel he has forgotten a few of the things he taught his students. He has stated he wants to encourage business here in California ... However, one series of bills he sponsored would have added $365 million to business unemployment...

My opponent voted for the bill that put on the ballot a constitutional amendment that lowered the votes necessary to raise business taxes from a two-thirds vote of both legislative bodies to a simple majority. That does not bring in businesses ... We should have it so that it takes a two-thirds vote to raise any kind of tax — corporate, personal income, sales etc. Then our state government would think twice before increasing spending.

I think it's about time the government stopped talking of how it wants jobs for the people and started acting to do so. Before that can happen we must see some new faces in Sacramento, including one from the 15th Assembly District.

Mr. Mori seems to do a pretty good job talking about what ought to be happening so let's put him back into the classroom where he can do his talking and let someone else be in Sacramento doing some work.

LARPD quarterback

Editor, The Times:

Lee Lambert's presumption that he is the better qualified LARPD candidate by virtue of his district attendance record is tantamount to a young child's belief that through watching football on television he has acquired sufficient skill to quarterback the Raiders.

Humor him but don't let him suit up.

Ron Monks
Candidate, LARPD
Board of Directors

For Congress

Editor, The Times:

I would like to ... thank Dee Schmidt of Pleasanton whose kind letter of support for my Congressional candidacy appeared in the Oct. 15 Times.

Let me also say that I have found many others, in addition to Dee, who share their concern about the "big money, liberal spending and ideologies" of Pete Stark. Very, very many in fact. Believe me, Dee, you are far from being alone in your justifiable concern about the policies of Mr. Big Spender, alias Pete Stark.

Incidentally, I challenged Mr. Big Spender to a formal debate on the many issues that are on the minds of the voters of the Ninth District. However, Pete unfortunately refused to do so, unless we happen to run into each other on a candidate's night ... a forum from which he could later wiggle out of by simply claiming that he is "busy" or that he "unfortunately" has a "scheduling conflict."

And the reason for Pete's refusal: "After all, wouldn't it be awful if you and I gave a debate and nobody came?" I think that Pete should speak for himself, and I believe that the voters think so too.

Candidate, 9th

Rotary lights

Editor, The Times:

The Livermore Area Recreation and Parks District board of directors recently approved a $13,000 expenditure to purchase light standards for the Rotary Club's Stadium Light Project.

The project is approximately 30 percent complete with installation of the standards just around the corner. A tremendous amount of hard work and money has been poured into this project by the Rotary Club.

I challenge any individual or organization to give the Rotarians a helping hand. After all, we will all benefit when the lights are operative and the stadium can be used to its potential. Come on Livermore, "Let's pull together."

BART's Bob Allen

Editor, The Times:

As a concerned citizen, registered Democrat and a common citizen, I have taken great interest in the actions and antics of Bob Allen, an ultra-conservative, John Birch, member of the BART Board up for re-election this year.

His opponent, John McCordle, is probably accurate when he says that Bob Allen is in the minority on the BART Board and does not get along with the majority group headed by Clark and Cooper. If McCordle is elected, he assures us that he would side with the majority on the BART Board. I'm not sure that's what I want.

I agree that Bob Allen is a maverick and in many cases he's probably a minority of one on the BART Board, but I appreciate what he's done. He's focused on many things the current majority would have liked to have kept hidden... Bob Allen has done more to keep the BART Board honest and on its toes than any other person in the Bay Area. Bob's not afraid to play the role watchdog ... we need more elected representatives like him, even if they are ultra-conservatives and John Birchers.

I didn't vote for Bob last time because I didn't feel he was the best man for the job. If re-elected he'll probably still be in the minority ... but he'll keep 'em honest, and right now we need that.

Perhaps others feel the same way, we'll soon see because Bob Allen's name is not the first on the ballot this time.

Round the town

I take exception to those who argue that "television is a boob tube ... never teaches us anything worthwhile."

Watching the World Series on prime time Sunday night tv, and with an audience somewhat in excess of the population of the census west of the Mississippi, I came to the conclusion that commercial television is one of our more educational forums.

Where else, I ask you, could you learn to spit like that? I mean, not just the kind of over-the-chin dribble most of us remember from our early spitting years. This major league spittle is in a class by itself.

The Cincinnati Reds are struggling. Two down, two on, Pete Rose at the bat. Will Pete bunt? From the Reds' bench Sparky Andersen watches intently, and then ... he spits!

Across the land, some 50 million Americans know what that spit means! Hit away, Pete! And Pete Rose hits away, drives in a bundle of runs, carries the Reds to victory. It is a classic story of American triumph over adversity, brought to you by the Spit.

Catfish Hunter spits too. But — and I have this on the best baseball authority — Mr. Hunter's spittle is more of necessity, than an expression of dogged determination.

Mr. Hunter (anybody who makes in excess of $1 million per year shall be called "Mister") chews tobacco, you see. Most of us can see that by the great bulge in Mr. Hunter's right cheek. Personally, I would be satisfied with just that clear evidence of Mr. Hunter's tobacco-chewing habits.

But no, Mr. Hunter is determined to educate us on the virtues of Bull Durham by expectorating great gobs of the stuff on occasion, and on prime time television. It is worthy of mention that Mr. Hunter's expectorations on Sunday last were clearly off the mark, symptomatic of his pitching prowess that evening which resulted in the Cincinnati's knocking the Hunter offerings all over the lot.

Anyhow, I am certain the nation's youth have learned more about the merits of spit these last few days than might have been possible in 12 semesters of concentrated public school instruction. (In this I do not mean to put down spitting educators, some of whom expectorate often and well, I understand. It's just that million dollar spitting pitchers have a wider audience, and therefore more opportunity to guide the nation's youth therein.)

Nor does major league baseball limit its edification of the nation's small fry to spitting. I am sure you all caught that hilarious story that Joe Garagiola and his commenting sidekick gave us during Game Two of The Series. It dealt with the "clowning around" by several baseball players, one of whom wound up in the clothes drier ... "where he took quite a bouncing before he could get out."

Now, only if you are the parent of an active ten-year-old, and also the owner of a clothes drier, can you appreciate what Mr. Garagiola has done for America. No longer will we be content to place clothes and possibly the household cat in the drier, as of yore. Now real people — famous baseball players even! — are ripe for the drier cycle. The possibilities are limitless.

I know there are some among you who will argue that "The kids aren't learning anything from baseball players and game commentators that they hadn't already learned from Kojak or Police Woman." Which is true.

But whereas wiser heads had relegated that other tv mayhem to "the hours after bedtime" (when most parents have gone to bed that is, leaving the kids and the tube on their own) the prime-time television of baseball and football and even tennis matches now affords us with a view of "The games that American adults play."

There are, no doubt, some unenlightened parents who maintain spitting and close-up views of physical violence are not appropriate subjects for 20 million avid sports fans under the age of 16. I would point out however that the only other show on television these days is that series of Great Debates; and — quite honestly now — where would you prefer your child to learn how to spit and elbow his way through life? ... from the telecasts of major league sports? ... or from the Dole-Mondale exchanges?

If we are going to have adults spitting at each other, swearing at each other, and stuffing the other guy in the clothes drier or whatever, I for one would far sooner have my child learn that lesson from the likes of a Catfish Hunter or a Jimmy Connors, rather than a couple of little-known candidates for the vice presidency.

As I always told my offspring ... "It's never really violent or dirty, not as long as the participants are very rich, very famous, or on prime time television." I am indebted to NBC-TV for now making that clear to juvenile minds everywhere.

Shocking!

Is nothing sacred in the British theatre? Very little these days.

You don't portray the queen sleeping in sweat socks, or Admiral Nelson setting sail with his rubber ducky in tow. Shakespeare and Chorus Line are SRO. Some legends still bear the "hands off" stamp.

But for most English institutions, it's open season on stage.

Sir Laurence Olivier is game to the slings and arrows. Not even the Bard's plays are sheltered from liberal interpretation.

Adhere to tradition could be the motto for a nation, but in the British theatre it's damn the convention, full speed ahead.

And don't expect the voyage to be tempest-free.

A whole row of patrons walked out of the crammed Royal Shakespeare Theatre at Stratford-upon-Avon two weeks ago when the Royal Shakespeare Company took liberties with "A Comedy of Errors."

Turned it into a musical comedy. Made the setting a chic Italian cafe. Dressed faggot waiters in T-shirts.

Actually, it was good. For novices of The Bard's work, musical interludes were welcome amidst the stilted dialogue. They shed light on the farcical, yet complicated tale of twin brothers, and their twin slaves.

You couldn't explain that, however to the ticket holders who marched out of the 50-year old theatre before intermission, and into an evening downpour.

Downpour turned to deluge a few days later when the BBC broadcast reports of a new attack on W.S. A famous British director, it seems, is rewriting some of Shakespeare's best stuff. He wants to make it readable for school kids.

"Get thee to a nunnery," will come out closer to; "Clean up your act, sister."

The youngsters love the idea. Those angry ticket holders in Stratford hate it. They're still all wet.

For all its historical implications, the Shakespearean brouhaha is minor. The real Pier-6 brawl involves the National Theatre in London. Even the great Olivier has been tweaked in this riot.

He was established as director of the national company, spearhead for construction of a multi-million pound playhouse to showcase the finest British talent.

It's become a scandal replete with cost overrides and backroom politics, engaged in even by Sir Laurence. Ill health forced him to stand aside and now the new director is weathering the fury of critics, accountants, and government. Only massive infusions of public funds can keep the overly ambitious theatre operating.

For all of this stagedoor storming, however, British theatre is still healthy, and rambunctious.

Agatha Christie's "Mouse Trap" is enjoying its 24th year in London. You still have to book it a week ahead. Light hearted pokes at Britain's sexual hangups are taken in numerous theatres in The Strand.

At Windsor, just down the hill from the Queen's castle, they jabbed at sex in politics with "The Earl and the Pussycat." Call girls have toppled more than one regime at 10 Downing St., and they've kicked up a fuss on Capitol Hill, too. Fortunately the Windsor players found a good bit of sarcasm in the hanky-panky.

The British have to look closely for the sarcasm in "Chorus Line." The Broadway company is performing this year's biggest smash at Drury Lane Theatre, in London's Aldwych District. It sells out, but you only have to book a day ahead.

English audiences love the play. They miss subtle barbs, however. For instance, a lot of folks are still trying to find humor in the redundancy of a Buffalo, N.Y. suicide.

That, of course, is a mere problem with geography, not the English wit. No one ever questioned their ability to laugh. That's why London is buzzing over "No Sex Please, We're British."

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A successful day is in store for you. You'll gain the cooperation of coworkers through your pleasant manner.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Lady Luck is on your side today. If you like to take a flyer on a long shot, this is the day to do it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Helping others is second nature for you today. Even though you do it unselfishly, there could be some handsome rewards.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Working gives you pleasure and holds your interest today. In the evening you'll have a fine time with true friends.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Look for assistance from those in high places. You're held in great regard. Favors will be readily granted.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You have excellent foresight today. If you act on it, changes for the better can be brought about for you and your family.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your mind is active today, but you're not that interested in being around others. Curl up with a good book.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Cooperation is your forte today. Much can be gained to bring about fruitful relationships.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You may be dealing for high stakes today, especially in career or work-related matters. It could be fortunate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Like the Pied Piper, children and even adults will follow you today. You're the one who dreams up all the fun things to do.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Property or possessions you're instrumental in acquiring today will make your family's surroundings more comfortable.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If there is anything you want to talk over with your mate or business associates, this is the day to do it.

Boris Schapiro points out that the winning bridge player must be able to guess right when the losing player guesses wrong.

Of course, the winning player isn't really guessing. He is making an intelligent decision, while the loser is making an unintelligent one.

South liked his hand but had a slight problem about what to do over East's four-spade opening. Five hearts might well be an inadequate bid, but he made it anyway.

West jumped to six spades and when it came back to South he had a real problem. Was West bidding six spades

Ask the Jacobys

A Pittsburgh reader wants to know if it is a misdeal when a card is exposed during the deal, or if that card must be an honor to cause the misdeal.

The answer is that if any card is exposed during the deal that it is a misdeal, but that some social players don't enforce this rule if the card is not an honor.

(Do you have a question for the experts? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of this newspaper. The Jacobys will answer individual questions if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are enclosed. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

Yosemite's best season

Some risks are worth taking.

Like the risk of running into bad weather at Yosemite in the fall.

More likely, you'll be rewarded with golden days and frosty nights, leaves beginning to turn colors and, best of all, no crowds.

September and October are winding - down months at the dazzling national park. In the outlying areas, shops and gas stations shorten their hours. Shuttle buses run every half hour instead of every few minutes.

At the gracious Wawona Lodge, at the south end of the park, the chandeliers are draped in sheets, the carpets are rolled up in the main halls, the swimming pool is empty and the dining room is closed.

But golfers still trudge along the nine - hole course. Tame deer pick their way across the rolling lawns that surround the sprawling white frame hotel where every room opens onto a wide porch and a mountain view.

In two weeks, the Wawona will be shut down til spring. So will 16 - mile - long Chinquapin Road, which winds 1,400 feet up to Glacier Point.

It takes almost an hour to get up to Glacier Point from Wawona or from the Valley - where the lodges, campgrounds, restaurants and shops are concentrated.

Once at the top, take your pick from spectacular vistas of the valley and of the "High Country" beyond, with its 12,000 - foot peaks.

A thin blue haze hangs over the valley. "The pines are producing turpentine this time of year," explains a ranger. "It's very volatile." No smog here.

More than 3,000 feet below, the Merced River snakes through the valley, under bridges and past pale gold meadows. The white tents of Curry Village huddle among the pines, while the stone - and - log Ahwahnee Hotel stands dramatically against a wall of granite.

Even in autumn, Nevada and Vernal Falls tumble down almost 1,000 feet of cliffs. In May and June, Glacier Point is the perfect vantage point as tons of meltwater roar down from the mountains and plunge into the valley in dozens of waterfalls.

Into hiking? A little? Just down the road from Glacier Point is another parking lot from which you can take two short and rewarding walks.

The more strenuous trail (if a 2 - mile roundtrip can be called strenuous) leads through manzanita and pine and cross bare granite to the top of 8,100 - foot Sentinel Dome.

The summit is bigger and safer than it looks from a distance, and offers a 360 - degree panorama of mountain scenery.

Off in the other direction from the parking lot, a level one - mile walk takes you to 7,500 - foot Taft Point. Unlike Glacier Point, which looks east toward Half Dome, this area offers stomach - tickling vistas of El Capitan and points east.

Yosemite off - season. It also means choice of inexpensive accommodations if you book ahead: $10 - 13 for a cabin in the valley or a room sans bath at Wawona. Also, more space at the campgrounds, first come, first served.

Well worth the risk of bad weather.

Prizes galore at trap shoot

In the Bag

The last PITA Trap Shoot of the season at the Livermore - Pleasanton Rod and Gun Club will be held October 24. Lots of great prizes will be given out.

Class AA-A-B-C-D in 16 yds. event; Class A-B-C-D in Handicap; Doubles in all classes. A prize for High Lady (combination score for 16 yds. and Handicap); and prizes for the top gun in Sub - Junior, Junior and Veteran.

Bring lots of ammo (only 12 - gauge will be available at the club grounds). Practice traps will open at 9 a.m. and competition will start at 10 sharp.

Pistol and rifle ranges will be closed during the trap shoot. Hope to see you there!

Waterfowl hunting will get under way in earnest Saturday (Oct. 23) for upwards of 150,000 scattergunners with the opening of the general season over most of California. Seasons along the Colorado River and in northeastern California opened earlier this month.

The 93 - day straight season for ducks and geese will end Jan. 23, 1977. Duck limits are seven per day, 14 in possession.

However, only two redheads or canvasbacks, singly or in the aggregate, may be taken daily and only four may be possessed.

In San Francisco Bay, Suisun Bay and Suisun Marsh, where only one canvasback was allowed in the bag last year, the daily limit is two and the possession limit is four as in the balance of the state.

Goose limits are six per day, six in possession, but the limit may not include more than three white geese and not more than three of the dark species. However, the limit may include no more than one Ross's goose.

Hunters are reminded of special closures this year on Canada geese and their subspecies to protect the endangered Aleutian Canada goose. Closed are all of the counties of Del Norte, Humboldt and Mendocino; portions of Glenn, Colusa, Sutter and Butte counties in the Sacramento Valley from Oct. 23 until Dec. 15 and portions of Stanislaus and Merced counties in the San Joaquin Valley from Dec. 15 through Jan. 23.

In the southern zone the season for Canada geese will run from Oct. 23 through Jan. 2.

Only one bird in the daily bag may be a Canada goose or its subspecies in that portion of Fish and Game District 22 (Imperial County, eastern Riverside County and southeastern San Bernardino County) in the southern zone although two may be possessed after the first day.

Hunting for Canada geese in this area will stop at sunset Jan. 2 rather than closing two weeks earlier as has been the case in past years.

Hunting on nine state and federal waterfowl areas also will open Saturday, Oct. 23. These are the state's Grizzly Island, Volta, Los Banos, Imperial and Mendota wildlife areas, and the Kesterson, San Luis, Merced and Salton Sea national wildlife refuges. The Perris Reservoir State Recreation area will open Sunday (Oct. 24).

Openings have been delayed until Nov. 6 on five other areas because of late crop harvests. These are the state's Gray Lodge Wildlife Area and the Sacramento, Delevan, Colusa and Sutter NWRs. The Joice Island Unit of Grizzly Island Wildlife Area also will open on Nov. 6. Because of insufficient water, there will be no hunting program this year on Kern NWR.

There will be a special closure again this year for waterfowl and coot hunting in the eastern portion of Big Bear Lake, San Bernardino County.

Also fair game throughout the areas opening Saturday and continuing through Jan. 23 are coots, gallinules and jacksnipe. Limits for coots and gallinules are 25 per day, 25 in possession, and for jacksnipe eight per day, 16 in possession.

The season for black sea brant will open Jan. 15, 1977 and continue through Feb. 20 statewide.

Starting time for waterfowl hunting is one - half hour before sunrise, and closing time is sunset. Shooting hours for the various areas are listed in Part II of the hunting regulations which is available in booklet form at sporting goods stores and Department of Fish and Game offices around the state.

Waterfowl hunters are reminded that, in addition to the basic hunting license, they must have the $5 federal duck stamp and the $1 state duck stamp. The stamps are not required for hunters under 16 years.

SF trades Johnson

REDWOOD CITY — The San Francisco 49ers acquired wide receiver Jim Lash from Minnesota Tuesday, sending running back Sammy Johnson to the Vikings in a National Football League trade.

49ers Coach Monte Clark said Lash, a four-year veteran, is being counted on as the replacement for injured starter Willie McGee "but it would be very difficult for him to step right in this week."

McGee, who caught four touchdown catches in the 49ers' first five games, broke his left leg in Sunday's 33-3 victory over New Orleans. He will undergo surgery Thursday and miss the rest of the season.

A rookie, either Steve Rivera or Kenny Harrison, is expected to start at the receiver spot opposite veteran Gene Washington in Saturday night's game here against Atlanta.

Clark said four free agents — Doug Martin, Earl Thomas, Dennis Franklin and Terry Linsey — will be looked at today and possibly one of them will join the team.

Lash, who played college football at Northwestern, lost his starting job with the Vikings this season and has caught only four passes for 52 yards. In two starting seasons, he had 69 catches for 1,166 yards.

Johnson, in his third NFL season, has rushed 24 times for 52 yards this year.

San Francisco linebacker Willie Harper, guard John Watson and running back Del Williams were among players nursing injuries at Monday's practice and are doubtful for the Atlanta game.

EBAL coaches react

Radley says no to HS swimming

Even before autumn has become chilly enough to bring on that instinctive yearning for spring, the East Bay Athletic League boys swim season has run into a bit of turbulence.

Citing a "conflict of interest" between high school and Amateur Athletic Union swim programs NorCal Aquatics coach Bill Radley said Monday he will force his boy swimmers to choose between the Aquatics or their school team during the 1977 season.

Radley, a former San Mateo High School swim captain, said, "I believe the kids should have the experience of swimming for their school, but they shouldn't be intimidated into swimming — the school cons them into coming out."

With next year's Short Course Junior AAU Nationals in April, Radley feels, "I can't lose sight of my guys for two months, because the high school coach can't, and won't, take the responsibility of getting them to the junior nationals."

"And, if they don't get there, it's still my fault."

He claimed that "kids aren't able to take a piece of paper and do what it tells them to do. Some one has to be there to drive them and I do mean drive them."

As evidence, he cited a former NorCal and California High School swimmer whose time fell 12 seconds in the 400-meter freestyle after he returned from a family trip "completely debilitated" and with "a very bad attitude."

He Radley insists that, "High school coaches must work with me," adding that he doesn't believe AAU swimmers involved with high school programs should have to undergo the school workouts.

"I can prove high school programs interfere with their progress by deviating toward other goals," he said. "This isn't like a football team where the kids have to work together."

In addition, he claims a miasma shrouds the typical high school practice session.

"There is a lot of peer pressure on the talented kids. They don't want to look like they're playing the big super-stud," Radley alleged. "And the coaches are more apt to be rah - rah, pat-on-the-head nice guys."

Times SPORTS

The controversial NorCal coach also said that the goals of a short high school season are bound to be different than an AAU swimmer's long - range goal, thus affecting his progress.

He also took on the dedication of some high school athletes, whom he claimed, "smoke two packs a day once the season ends."

While Radley admitted, "That doesn't affect my kids, since they're so into self - discipline and have got too much respect for what they are doing — but it drags the whole program down."

Radley's team represents just a small part of the huge AAU network in the Southern Alameda and Contra Costa County area, thus the reaction from EBAL coaches was not as violent as might be expected.

"You can't print what my comments are," laughed California High School coach Ken Carroll, briefly an assistant to Radley. "But he's lost a lot of swimmers with that kind of a stand."

"I've worked with AAU coaches for 10 years and I've never had any problems before this. Most of them feel that high school swimming is an integral part of the athlete's development."

Tim Hern, now a teacher at Foothill but still coaching at Dublin, another of the schools affected by the NorCal edict, said, "I don't think it's very professional to put a kid in that position."

Hern, also a former Radley assistant, cited an instance in which a high school "turned a kid on to swimming" who later went on to star for the Aquatics.

He pointed out that few swimmers actually need specialized coaching for the national meets.

"There are some half a million kids in AAU programs, but most will never go to the Junior Nationals," he explained. Hern also noted the function of the schools outside the realm of reading, "riting and 'rithmetic."

"High School is a very important time in adolescence. It's wrong to deprive the kids of the activities that go with it," he said.

Hern defended high school coaches, saying that he doesn't consider himself a rah - rah and wouldn't entertain thoughts of pressuring a student into coming out for his team. He also believes that AAU and high school programs should be treated as separate, but equal, entities.

"If a kid chooses to come out for the high school team, he should do what the high school coach says," Hern concluded.

San Ramon's Craig Ritts, who has little dealing with Radley since his swimmers compete primarily for the San Ramon Seawolves, Orinda Aquabears and Pleasant Hill at the AAU level, placed the problem over the heads of both Radley and his colleagues.

"Part of the problem is that, at the college level, the NCAA is always clashing with the AAU over track meets and so forth. It's filtered down to the high school level," he explained. "The California Interscholastic Federation takes the attitude of making it difficult for a kid to compete in both programs."

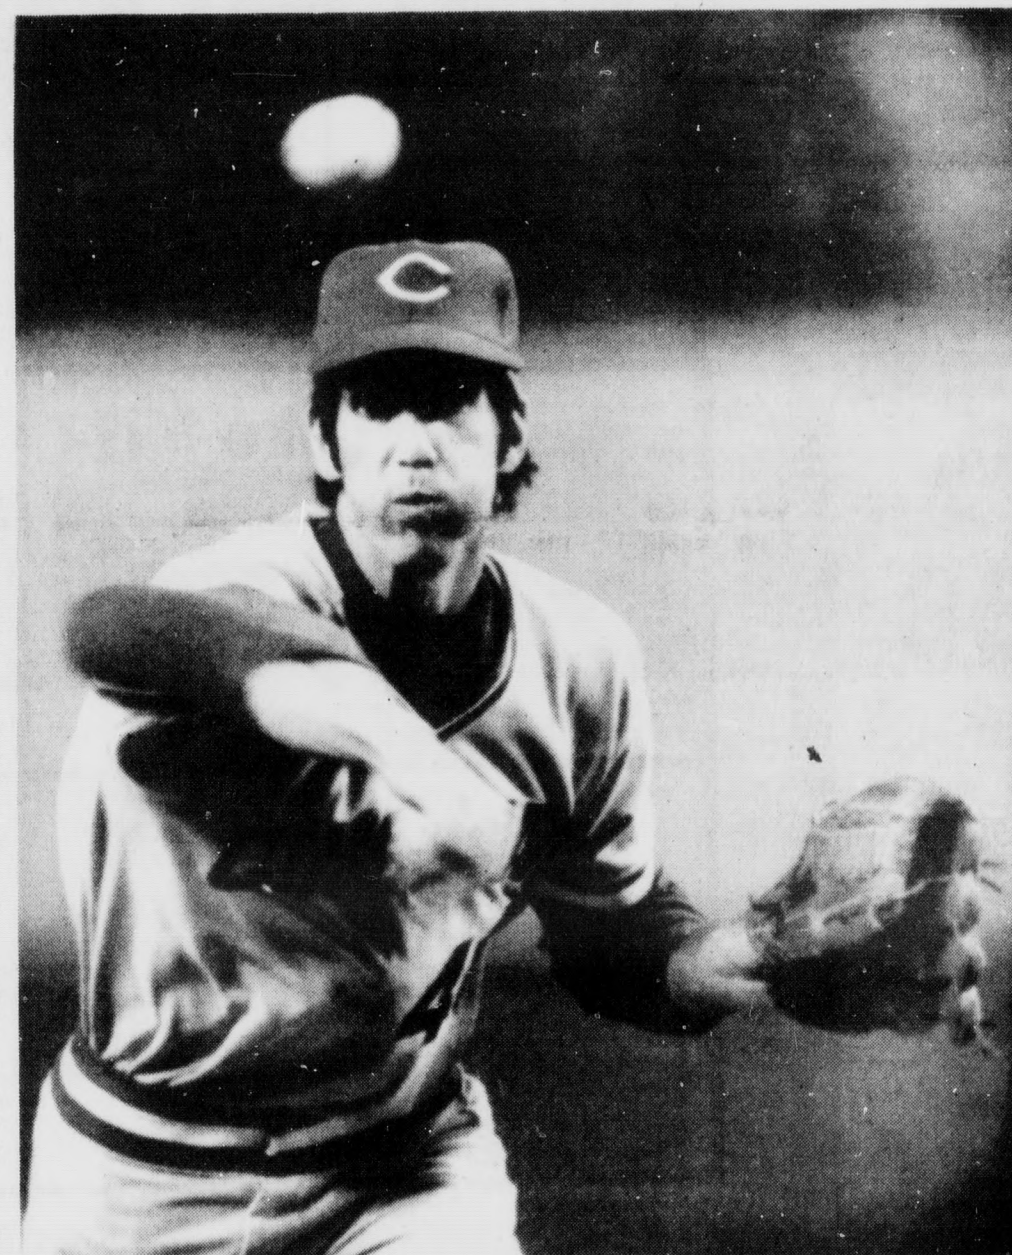

"Every year, a new rule makes it harder."

Ritts allows a mix of practice sessions which he believes fosters team spirit with out hindering the swimmer's progress. As for the smoker/drinker issue, Ritts has, surprisingly, already suspended a swimmer for the season for violating San Ramon rules against such vices.

Ritts wrapped up his feelings, saying, "I don't fault Mr. Radley for his attitude, though I wish he'd rise above it."

Gus DeGara, in the unique position of coaching both a high school team (Granada) and an AAU team (the Livermore Aquacowboys) was unavailable for comment yesterday.

Reds' pitcher Pat Zachry fires one in as Reds take 6-2 win over Yanks for 3-0 Series lead.

On winning streak

MV netters top SR

In a match that one would have thought was being played for the league championship (especially in the latter two matches), Monte Vista made it 10 wins in a row by defeating rival San Ramon, 6-1, in East Bay Athletic league tennis yesterday.

In other matches yesterday Foothill dumped California, 7-0 and Granada put down a competitive Amador Valley team, 6-1.

Granada's win was not as easy as it sounded. Three of the Matadors' wins had to go to three sets before being decided.

Meanwhile, second seed Doug Stone, who lost to Gordon Monday for that position, blitzed Geoff Blake, 6-0, 6-0; Guy Schalin defeated Doug Podkin, 6-3, 6-3; Dave Parker beat Kelan Satterich, 6-1, 6-0; and Dan Bergmann held on to beat Scott Towns, 6-4, 6-1.

While the Mustangs' No. two, four, six and second doubles teams all recorded mediocre wins, the Wolves, with No. 1, seed Rick Reed, attempted to make a match out of it. He did.

Reed upset previous undefeated Tripp Gordon, 6-2, 7-6, 6-4, which included a 5-2 tie breaker won by the freshman Gordon.

The Mustangs' second doubles team of brothers Gary and Mike Niebur downed Carl Ericson and Brian Tillinghast, 6-1, 6-1. However, it took three sets before Van Schalin and Jeff Southwood, who remain undefeated, to beat a determined Jim Meese and Doug Bivens, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3.

In the Reed - Gordon confrontation, the former controlled most of the first set, particularly at the net. The impressive Wolves player employed strong ground shots, embellished by amazing chops and spins to down the hard working Gordon.

"Tripp was just flat on his feet today," explained Mustang net coach Floyd Baker. "He wasn't getting his racket through. Maybe he is tired from playing Stone."

Stone, meanwhile, was superb. Stone, who is ranked 30th in the nation as a sophomore, finished off Blake in less than 30 minutes.

Baker, meanwhile, said his main objective with three matches remaining is to, of course, win and go undefeated. "Our medium objective is to go undefeated," he said.

"I'm a bit worried about over confidence and complacency. I'd love to win all seven at league."

And Monte Vista is about the only EBAL team which could do that.

Driessen's HR kills Yanks, 6-2

NEW YORK — Dan Driessen, in Cincinnati's lineup only because of a rule change his manager detests, ripped a home run and two other hits Tuesday night to lead the Reds to a 6-2 victory over the New York Yankees and a virtually unbeatable three-game lead in baseball's 1976 World Series.

The victory left the Reds one triumph away from their second straight world championship. No team in the 72-year history of the Series has lost the first three games and come back to win the best-of-seven showdown.

Cincinnati goes for the clincher in Game 4 here tonight. Driessen, unable to crack the awesome regular lineup of the Reds, was in the batting order as the designated hitter, an American League rule that permits an extra batter in place of the usually weak-hitting pitcher.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn ordered the DH rule to be used in the Series for the first time this year and Reds Manager Sparky Anderson complied with the order although he didn't like it.

At various times, Anderson has called the DH "idiotic," "stupid," and a few other choice things. But he had to like it in Game 3 of the Series as Driessen led the destruction of the Yankees.

EBAL sweeps Flecto awards

The East Bay Athletic League made a sweep of the Flecto Sports Award Alameda County and Contra Costa County offerings and tossed in a couple other nominees to boot, it was announced today.

Granada High School's senior fullback Vance Rushing finally earned prep - of - the - week honors after two previous nominations hadn't gained enough votes.

Rushings consistency might have worked against him in any bid for the award as his 142-yard performance against Dublin Friday night was typical of his season so far, while other backs had grabbed the head lines with huge one-game binges.

Vance scored all of the Matadors touchdowns in the key win Friday, going in from seven, three and two yards out. He also returned three punts for 59 yards.

"He's not real fast, but he's a hard runner," said assistant coach Rick Watt. "He's got a nose for the goal line."

The EBAL also sported the only other nominee for the Alameda County Award, Joanne Calender of Dublin spiked game winners in both the first and third games in a 17-15, 7-15, 17-15 win over Livermore that kept the Gaels in first place in volleyball last week.

Meanwhile, San Ramon wide receiver Jon Arnaud captured the Contra Costa award, grabbing three touchdown passes from fellow nominee Troy Thomas in the final eight minutes of the Wolves 34-23 win over Livermore Friday night.

Arnaud finished with six catches for 109 yards, including TDs of six, 32 and 37 yards. Out with a recurring back injury most of the week, he returned to maintain his lead in EBAL receiving stats with his performance.

Sophomore quarterback Thomas also earned the nod, completing 14 of 22 passes to stay atop the EBAL and put SR into the eerie six-way tie for first in the league via the trio of passes to Arnaud.

Liberty's Jose Oseguera, who gained 107 yards in the Lions upset of Alhambra and Concord's Troy Brundy, who ran for 185 yards and a TD in a non-league victory over Miramonte were also mentioned for the award.

Girls' gymnastics

Stangs rout Foothill

DANVILLE — Defending East Bay Athletic league girls' gymnastics champion Monte Vista got off to a rousing start in the new season yesterday with a convincing 141-64 victory over Foothill here.

The defending champions, who have many lettermen returning, were paced by Kathy Chapman and Joline Gaffney in the advanced level.

Chapman and Gaffney each won three events in advanced competition.

The Mustangs got outstanding performances from June Gaffney, Ann Wyatt and Monica Jayko in the intermediate division as all three athletes did well in several events.

Gaffney collected 23 points. The Stangs won that competition 24-4.

Monte Vista swept to easy wins in the novice and beginner's competition.

Peggy Wyatt won the floor exercise to spark the winners in the beginner's competition. Vicki Vandervoort and Tammy Heisling also performed well in that division.

Melody Banton, Connie Travis and Gina Armstrong did well in the all-around in the novice division. Travis and Barton won three events in the action.

"I'm really optimistic about repeating as champions, particularly after today's competition," said MV coach Leanne Foster.

Lee Wells of Granada shows her skill in yesterday's match with San Ramon. Results of the match were not reported.

Gaels rally, topple Dons

Dublin High's girls' volleyball team rebounded from a shaky first game to overwhelm Amador in the second game and take a 15-12, 15-5 win over the Dons in East Bay Athletic League play yesterday in Dublin.

Dublin improved their league-leading EBAL record to 7-1, while the Dons dipped to 4-5.

In other volleyball action Monte Vista blasted Foothill, 15-2, 15-3, California topped Livermore 10-15, 15-4, 15-10 and San Ramon upset Granada, 15-11, 15-11.

The Gaels have six games remaining on the schedule, including a rematch with the team that gave the Gaels their only loss of the year, Granada.

"We'll be out for a little revenge in that game," remarked Dublin coach Sue Shoemaker, whose Gaels must also face Monte Vista in a rematch. "We would have played Monte Vista last Thursday, but no referees showed up," said Shoemaker. The Mustangs trail the Gaels by two games.

In yesterday's game with Amador, Dublin started off very slowly and the Dons took advantage by jumping out to a 9-3 lead. Jayne Kuhns and Carolyn Hill sparked the Dons to their quick opening.

The Gaels rallied from behind to take a 10-9 lead when Joanne Calendar chased an errant Dublin setup all the way back to the bleachers. The ball, after hitting the low Dublin gym roof twice, came down and Calendar swatted it clear over the net to the Amador side. The Dons stood in amazement and just watched the ball drop in for the point.

The teams see-sawed the lead before the Gaels broke to clinch the game on Alicia Crumpler's slicing serve that fell inside the Amador line.

Dublin took firm control of the second game by racing out to an insurmountable 7-0 lead. Although Amador's Debbie Oxsen, Grace Autio and Carmen Macon came away with some good saves for the Dons, Dublin was right there with a return every time.

Karen Jewell picked up five points on serves for the Gaels and played an excellent game as spotter. "She's the workhorse of our team," said Shoemaker. "The spikers usually get all the glory. She doesn't get much recognition."

"Joanne Calendar played her usual good game," remarked the coach. Calendar and Kathie Center drew praise from Shoemaker.

Karen Fisher and Sue Collar sparked the Monte Vista win.

Donna Gallagher sparked San Ramon with nine points, all in the second set. Chris Cooper and Debbie Lloyd also played well for SR.

Lee Poissant led the Cal barrages with four critical points in the second game. Cherie Carr led the Grizzlies with six points in the third and deciding contest.

In junior varsity action Foothill dumped Monte Vista 14-16, 15-6, 15-8, San Ramon outscored Granada, 15-4, 15-13 and Livermore edged California, 15-8, 12-15, 15-6.

Swenson's Valley in volleyball victory

The cutely-nicknamed Swenson's Valley Community Services District volleyball team smashed the Chartreuse Moose, 15-5, 15-6 and 15-4, recently.

For Swenson's, Milkshake Drain served 14 points and Tutti Frutti Stockert nine to up the scoops league record to 12-0.

Snap-On Tools withstood a late surge by Round Table Number Two to preserve a forfeit, 15-5, 15-13 sweep. Jane Yocum served wpll for the losers while Camille Nelson served seven points, Gloria Chuall, Sharon Heed and Jeanne Fitzgerald set the ball well for Snap-On.

Easy-over got strong serving from Adele Rudnicki and Andre Becker to capture a 14-16, 16-14, 15-8 split decision win over Hexcel. Doreen Colombo and Jan Lansero played well for Hexcel.

Led by Kathy Lungren's serves and ball handling the Silly Servers took two of three from the Dirty Dozen, 9-15, 15-8, 15-6. Dianna Loughery led the Dozen with good floor play.

Good ball handling and spiking led the Sugar and Spikes to a sweep of the 17ers 15-6, 15-5 and 16-14.

Long has shutout in Mites win

Bobby Long needed to turn away only six Berkeley shots to record his second shutout of the season as the Tri-Valley Mites AA blanked their East Bay hockey foes, 4-0.

Frankie Blancas, E.J. Rankin, Brian Schaeffer, Frankie Zagarella scored the goals while Rankin picked up two assists and Schaeffer, one.

Blancas scored the go-ahead goal on Tri-Valley's fifth short-handed tally of the season.

Although Todd Moore and Bill Edderhardt managed goals and Steve Barrett an assist, the Squirt A squad fell to Hayward, 4-2. Tri-Valley goalkeeper Hans Negd faced 19 shots. Each team scored in the first and second periods as the Tri-Valley tied Berkeley, 2-2, in Squirt AA play. David Pearson and Kevin Madeiros scored the goals off assists from Mark Gonzales and Ian Tooze.

Goalie Mike Lang stopped 11 shots while John Cresan and Steve Horowitz were the outstanding defencemen.

Brett Rankin's two goals and a single tally by Brad Smith were far less than enough as Marysville ripped the host PeeWee A squad, 11-3.

John Keeler and Smith had the assists while goalie Chris Huck was faced with a barrage of 42 Marysville shots in his first game in the cage. Regular David Schmitt suffered a broken foot the week before against Stockton.

Fred Omaque played well defensively. Marysville's Bantam A squad also whipped Tri-Valley, this time 8-5.

Terry Montanez scored a hat trick for Tri-Valley while Bart Schoeffer and Ken Stevens added the remaining goals. Both Schoeffer and Montanez had assists.

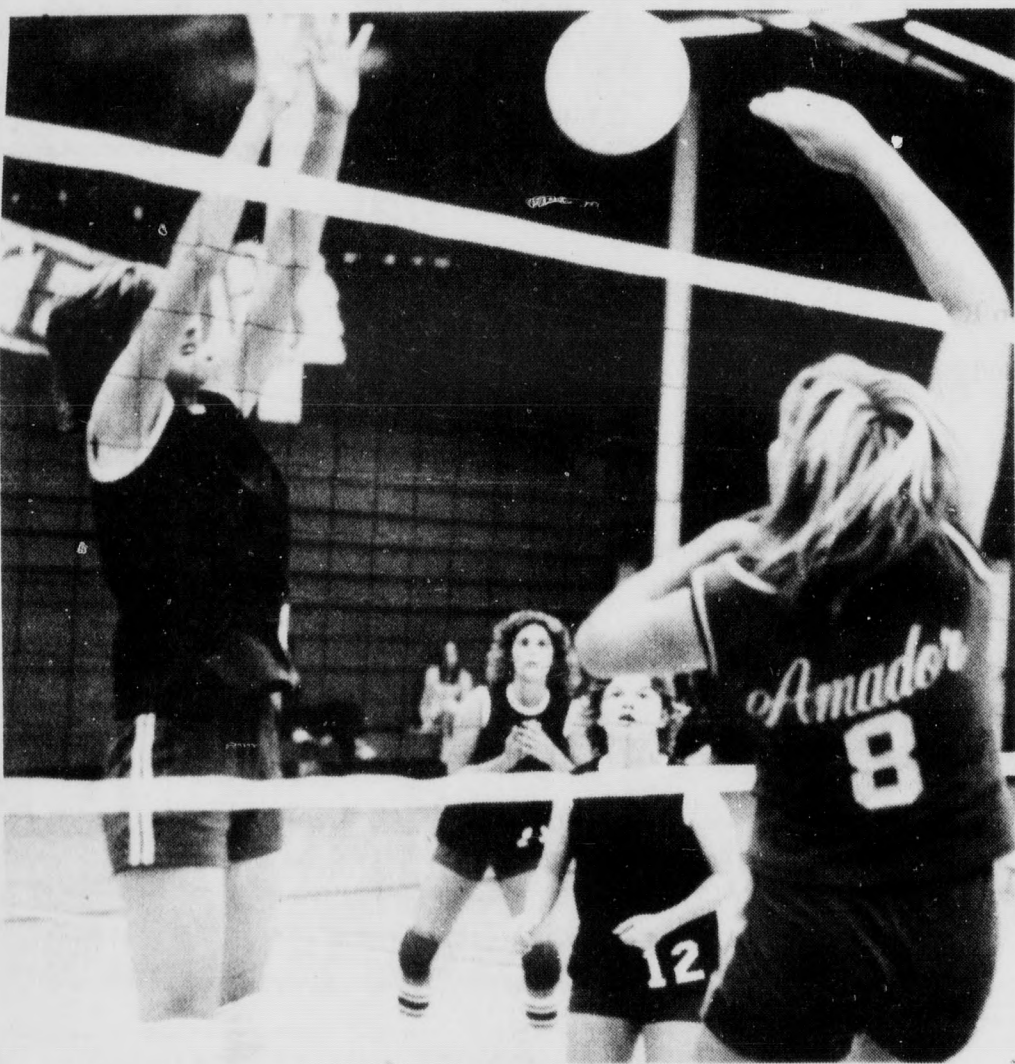

Goalie Steve Robello stopped 10 Marysville shots, including a rare penalty shot. Swarming goalie Dennis Hayes with 46 shots, Santa Clara whipped Tri-Valley's Midget A's, 10-1. Robert Mills scored the lone TV goal off a Robert Foster assist.

In Midget AA play, Belmont ripped Tri-Valley, 6-2, as Scott Collin and Steve Nelson scored the local teams goals. Todd Pickering and Dave DeHart assisted and goalie Greg Hickey faced 22 shots.

The Tri-Valley Juniors edged Stockton, 5-4, as Jeff Redgrave, John Halleck, Jarmo Kaksonen, Pete Schimony and Dave Baxter scored the goals.

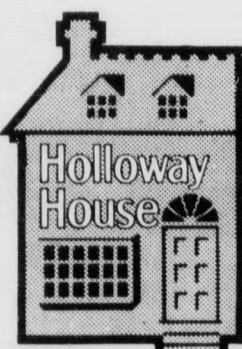

Netminder Lloyd Kristof turned away 23 shots.

AV's Jayne Kuhns (8) spikes the ball against Dublin yesterday.

BART elections: Minority rule

Campaign '76

By JUSTIN ROBERTS
News Analysis

The Bay Area Rapid Transit District has nine elected directors — but only one of them actually won the post in BART's first board election two years ago.

The other eight skidded into office by garnering only minor voter support in their districts. This is because the frailties of the state's uniform district election laws gave them the important BART posts without actual approval of a majority of the electorate.

Most voters figure when they troop off to the polling places that the democratic process involves majority rule and that even if the best man doesn't win, the one who does will have received the most votes.

But under the uniform district election laws of the state, a candidate can be elected by a mere plurality — instead of having to earn a majority (50 per cent, plus one) of the total vote cast.

BART's first elected board provides a dramatic example of what can happen under the law.

In fact, the district's most notorious director, President Elmer Cooper of San Francisco, was elected with only 15.28 per cent of the total vote cast in his Eighth District. Cooper polled only 10,394 out of a total vote cast of 67,987 in his district. Instead of a majority, he drew only 15.28 per cent of the total vote — and it got him elected.

The lowest actual numerical vote to put a director in office was that of BART's new vice president, Harvey Glasser of Alameda. Glasser's District 4 tally was 9,945 — representing only 21.44 per cent of the total vote.

How did they do it?

Uniform district election laws don't require a run-off between the two highest vote-getters in a special district election. Instead, the law merely awards the office to the candidate who wins the best plurality.

And therein lies the secret. In District 8 where Cooper ran, there was a field of 18 candidates seeking the post. With only 61,867 total votes cast in the district split among 18 hopefuls — it's easy to be the top vote-getter even with barely more than 15 per cent of the total vote.

The first runner-up in that district contest received 9,997 votes, only 3.8 per cent less than Cooper.

The same thing happened in Glasser's case when only 9,945 voters chose him from a field of 17 candidates.

Thus the majority preferred someone else in both these cases and the same applied in every other BART district but one.

In the District 2 election, which ranged from Western Contra Costa through the county's northern tier east to Byron, former appointive BART Director Nello Bianco of Richmond captured 52.5 per cent of the 70,713 votes cast. But Bianco's district was the only one with as few as five candidates running for the post, and this made it possible for the voters to choose by majority.

As the accompanying chart shows, each of BART's nine districts had approximately a quarter-million voters, with Contra Costa's two election districts having the largest populations. The chart also shows how the voters fared in each of the districts where a plurality — rather than a majority — put the present director in office.

The only exception to that is District 1, where the seat was vacated by James Hill of Walnut Creek, who resigned late last summer to assume a teaching position in Ohio.

His seat remains vacant until the Nov. 2 election when voters will again be confronted by the same problem of electing a candidate who may — but probably will not — represent a majority of Central County voters. District 1 covers Walnut Creek, Concord, Pleasant Hill, Moraga, Orinda, Lafayette, Danville, Clayton and Pacheco and there are 14 candidates seeking the position.

When the first elected board was seated, it was decided that directors from odd-numbered districts would serve the first term for two years — with even-numbered district representatives drawing four-year terms so that continuity would be maintained.

Thus, while there were 134 candidates after the nine posts two years ago, there is "only" a total of 33 seeking election to the First, Third, Fifth, Seventh and Ninth districts this year.

Nine candidates are seeking the District 3 position; three are contending for the vacancy in District 5, three are running in District 7 and four in District 9.

Thus, once again, unless a majority of the voters focus on only two or three of the candidates running in District 1, they will again be represented by someone whose vote was a victorious one given by a minority of the electorate, instead of the majority whose rule is what is expected in a democracy.

BORN LOSER

If you think things sometimes go wrong for you, you'll feel better after laughing at "The Born Loser" each morning in The Times comics.

Cityhood 'won't hike taxes'

DANVILLE — Taxes will not go up with incorporation of Danville, Alamo and San Ramon according to Town Now, a subsidiary group of Taxpayers for Local Control through Incorporation.

"According to a new state law (Revenue and Taxation Code Section 2286) taxes cannot be raised without a majority vote of the people," said Beverly Lane, chairperson of Town Now. "In fact, all residents of Alamo and Danville will have their property taxes decreased slightly by the elimination of a county service area."

"The tax of 25 cents per $100 which appears on the ballot is the local property tax we already pay," Lane continued. "Measure K, the incorporation question on the November 2 ballot, allows a 25 cent maximum tax rate for the town in place of the 25 cents now levied by the R-7 Parks Service Area in Alamo and Danville and in place of 25 cents of the VCSD tax in San Ramon. This is not a new tax."

"This parks tax is only a minor portion of the revenue which will be available to the new town," according to Lane. "Most of the income for the town comes from state subventions and other taxes already being collected by the state and county. Many people do not realize that the state collects taxes here which are earmarked for local government. By law, the county is our local government; therefore, under a complex state system, a portion of taxes we already pay, such as sales tax, gas tax, and cigarette tax, is returned to the county."

"When we incorporate, the taxes generated in the valley will be returned to the town to finance its operation," said Lane. "The revenue projections shown below are based on data provided by Contra Costa County and the State Board of Equalization in Sept. 1975."

Revenues to the town can be divided into five categories: 1. State subventions (we already pay these), A. Liquor license fees, $15,000; B. Cigarette taxes, $130,000; C. Motor vehicle in-lieu fees, $414,000; D. Gasoline taxes, $410,000; E. Highway carriers fees, $5,000. 2. Locally raised revenues (We already pay these), A. Local sales tax, $752,000; B. Property transfer tax, $26,000; C. Franchise fees, $77,000; D. Fines and Forfeitures, $89,000; E. Planning and zoning fees, $9,000. 3. Property tax — the above mentioned 25 cents which we already pay; $455,000. 4. Federal Revenue sharing (a minimum amount); $170,000. 5. Interest on one-time surplus*, $68,000. Total: $2,620,000.

Expenditures: 1. Police services, $937,000; 2. Legal services, $24,000; 3. Public works, $937,000; 4. General administration, $143,000; 5. Parks (R-7 and part of VCSD), $455,000; 6. Planning and zoning, $90,000. Total: $2,576,000.

Surplus — Aug., 1975, $44,000; plus: Surplus — June, 1976, $350,000. Total: $394,000.

The projected annual surplus shown above increases with the number of registered voters within the proposed town. Subventions are based in part on the number of registered voters at the time of incorporation.

This budget was based on August, 1975 voter registration figures of only 15,650, giving a surplus of $44,000.

ALAMO — The Alamo Improvement Association is sponsoring a town meeting Thursday, Oct. 21 at 8 p.m. in the Rancho Romero multi-use room.

Speakers from Town Now and WAIT will appear.

Town Now is a group wanting incorporation of Danville, Alamo and San Ramon. WAIT opposes the issue.

AIA officials researched pros and cons of incorporation and became proponents. They believe the proposed budget is realistic and will not result in increased taxes. Police services will be better than presently provided by the county. Most importantly for Alamo, local control will be realized, they say.

Treasury chief spurs Mills' bid

OAKLAND — Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon, stumping for Republican congressional candidates, appeared on behalf of Ninth District Congressional candidate Jim Mills Tuesday evening at the Hyatt Edgewater Hotel.

The $50 a person GOP fund-raiser and reception for Simon produced a small turnout but presented Simon with the platform to assail what he termed the spendthrift policies of Congress.

Also turning out to support Mills were state Attorney General Evell Younger and Congressman John Rousellot, a staunch conservation who represents a district in Orange County.

Simon lashed out at the "economic illiteracy of Congress," saying "the free lunch syndrome is alive and well in Washington, D.C."

"Today, government as a per cent of total income is at the 40 per cent level, whereas it was 10 per cent just a few years ago. Now you have to work until April just to pay taxes," Simon contended to a handful of Bay Area reporters and Mills' campaign aides.

Simon claimed there was no personal vendetta with Mills' opponent, incumbent Rep. Cortney Stark, although Simon felt the two-term Democrat incorrect and intemperate with remarks on tax reform and Watergate in the past.

Simon said Stark had been castigated by his colleagues for the comments.
